Two-Year Postdoctoral Fellowship in Children’s Mental Health Treatment Disparities and Services Research at the Silver School of Social Work, New York University

The Silver School of Social Work at New York University is recruiting a talented junior investigator for a two-year postdoctoral fellowship, starting August 1, 2014 through July 31, 2016. The fellowship focuses on research and training in children’s mental health treatment disparities and services research. For PhD graduates committed to this research area, the fellowship offers a two-year salary, and close association with a faculty member with a track record of federal, foundation and state funding. Training aspects of the fellowship include: (1) methodological knowledge and research skill acquisition to conduct high quality clinical services and intervention research in the area of child mental health treatment, particularly disparities in treatment among underserved populations; (2) interdisciplinary research training and collaboration; (3) federal, foundation and state grant preparation; (4) production of high quality manuscripts for submission to top-tier journal outlets; and (5) teaching one course per year. The fellowship will give the qualified candidate the opportunity to have time, space, mentorship and financial support to produce significant scholarship in this early phase of their career. By the conclusion of the training period, the fellow will have the requisite skills essential to their career advancement in academic and research settings.

Eligibility
Applicants must have a PhD by the time of the appointment. Applicants must also have completed their PhD within the past three years. Preference will be given to applicants with research interests in children’s mental health treatment disparities and services research.

How to Apply
Applications are due June 16, 2014, and reviews will continue until the fellowship position fills. Candidates should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae, two (2) writing samples, and the names and contact information of three (3) references to Dr. Michael A. Lindsey at Michael.Lindsey@nyu.edu. Salary is commensurate with NIH guidelines for postdoctoral salaries. See: http://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/notice-files/NOT-OD-14-046.html

Conditions
The fellow must be in residence full-time at the Silver School of Social Work and not hold other fellowship awards for the duration of the award period.
