Indian Health Service Cancer Support
Leadership Training

June 26-28, 2015
Albuquerque, NM

SUMMER 2015

The Indian Health Service Division of Epidemiology and Disease Prevention, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and Great Plains Tribal Chairmen’s Health Board’s (GPTCHB) Northern Plains Tribal Epidemiology Center (NPTEC) are collaborating to bring this training event to American Indian and Alaska Native peoples interested in offering cancer support in their own communities.

Our first training session was held in January 1995 and was modeled after Mary P. Lovato’s cancer support group, “A Gathering of Cancer Support.”

This three-day training session gives participants a unique opportunity to work together in a safe, supportive environment, learning and practicing skills to support individuals affected by cancer in their communities.

Next Tentative Training: June 26-28, 2015, in Albuquerque, N.M.

The training is offered free of charge — including travel, meals, lodging and training materials — to qualified applicants. Please consider joining us for this exciting and comprehensive training experience.

For application/registration information, please contact Roberta Paisano at Roberta.Paisano@ihs.gov or Marybeth Martin at 605.721.7508 or Marybeth.Martin@gptchb.org. If you cannot make the training event in June in Albuquerque, N.M., please check with us for subsequent scheduled session dates.
