

IMPACT

Wonderfully Made Art Show

Mike Garvey (left) and Richard Fink (right) admired Christopher's art at the Wonderfully Made art show at Touchstone Galleries in Washington, DC.

On April 23, 2015, Jill's House partnered with Bear Givers to host Wonderfully Made: An Art Show to Benefit Jill's House at Touchstone Galleries in Washington, DC.

The event, sponsored by the Richard & Mary Fink Family Foundation and Koch Industries, Inc., featured original art created by the children Jill's House serves. The event also featured art created by District Attorney General Alan Wilson, Charles and Charlie Koch, Scott Badesch, Evander Holyfield, Doug Williams, Yolanda Renee King, Brad Corrigan, Dominique Wilkins and Joe Scarborough. The art was sold and 100% of the proceeds were given to Jill's House.

The art show offered a unique opportunity to the Jill's House children and families. "For many of our children, having their artwork showcased like this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and means so much to their families," said Denise Daffron, vice president of advancement at Jill's House.

The Jill's House families who attended the show were delighted to see their child's art on display. One father shared, "I am overwhelmed with pride for my son and I absolutely loved this event. We had a wonderful time and were blessed. Thank you for a truly inspiring event." Another parent said the art show presented her with an opportunity to help her son understand his talent is recognized and his art is appreciated.

Thank you to everyone who celebrated our children, admired their work, and helped provide for their care at Jill's House.