

UCCTU Supports Women Fly Fishers

The July 28th monthly meeting of the Upper Chattahoochee Chapter of Trout Unlimited (UCCTU) will be focused on Women in Fly Fishing. During the meeting, chapter President Jim Harvey will present a $1,000 check to Casting for Recovery. Casting for Recovery, based in Manchester, Vermont provides retreats, support and relief for breast cancer patients and survivors across the country through the therapeutic sport of fly fishing.

Chapter President Harvey notes, "It is an honor to support the great work of Casting for Recovery and is important for the mission of UCCTU to grow the community of fly fishers who actively work for the protection of our precious water resources."

In addition, guest speaker Diane Minick, Watershed Director of the Upper Etowah River Alliance, will present information about the insects that are prevalent on the rivers and streams of North Georgia and the artificial flies that match them. A special exhibition of fly fishing gear designed for women will also be on display.

UCCTU meetings are open to everyone, but this meeting should be of special interest to women and girls who are interested in learning about fly fishing and the work of Trout Unlimited.

UCCTU is based in Roswell, GA and covers communities throughout North Fulton County. Members of UCCTU support Trout Unlimited's mission to conserve, protect and restore our cold water fisheries through educational and conservation activities as well as promoting the sport of fly fishing. Meetings are held the 4th Tuesday of every month except December at Ippolito's Italian Restaurant on Holcomb Bridge Road. Social hour and dinner begin at 6 pm. The meeting starts at 7 pm. More information is available on the chapter's website, ucctu.tu.org, or on Facebook at www.facebook.com/ucctu.
