The Conversation Project

They are a local team based project led by Dr. Kathleen Grimm, MD. The team is working on a national initiative to bridge the conversation surrounding end of life care, to include individuals, their families and the health care providers. A conversation that offers a continuum of individualized, patient centered care through end of life.

About this Inter-faith Conference

Henry David Thoreau wrote, Death is beautiful when seen to be a law, and not an accident — It is as common as life. In today's complicated health-care system, death isn't always seen or treated as if it is as common as life. Rapidly advancing medical technologies available to diagnose and treat illness make navigating an emotionally charged road even more difficult. Cultural and spiritual beliefs and values can be overlooked in the intensity of the crisis. Our speakers and panel of experts are here to encourage, educate and support us so we can engage the community and open the dialog surrounding the delicate conversation pertaining to end of life. A part of life as significant as death deserves a conversation that enables us to put as much energy into dying well as we do into living well and aging well.

Parish Nurse Ministries of New York, Inc. opens the conversation, "Finding the Abundant Life with a Compassionate Conversation" with the goal of helping our communities prepare for the inevitable. We can accomplish this through honest conversations about one's last wishes. As spiritual caregivers, nursing professionals, health care workers, and clergy we need to be trusted and prepared to help facilitate the end of life conversations, before a crisis situation arises. Within our lives we meet people with many cultural and religious differences. Join us on our journey to educate and promote discussions and decision making throughout our communities; it is essential!
