 piano from the Durham Western Heritage Museum's administrative assistant, and especially the "Oh for Heaven's Sake" room at the museum. Originally from Michigan, Roger studied business administration at Eastern Michigan University and is an accountant and president of a regional roofing company. After retiring, he is now a full-time volunteer at the museum. He is active in community events and organizations, and volunteers at local events.

Frankly, they're the best! But it's not just about the exhibits. The museum also has a great collection of books, which is why I love coming back for more. The volunteers are always helpful and knowledgeable, and they really make you feel like you're part of the community.

This is a wonderful place to visit with friends and family. Whether you're interested in history or just looking for a fun day out, the Durham Western Heritage Museum has something for everyone.
