Re: Your Constituent's View on Same-Sex Marriage

Dear Sir,

Marriage is not a relationship defined by man, but given by God for the benefit of both individuals and society. The Bible is clear that marriage is only a heterosexual and lifelong union. It is the essence of the relationship and the nature of mankind that confers marriage's benefits; and not simply the legal definition of the word itself.

It is not difficult to list the benefits of marriage. Study after study has confirmed that marriage confers a host of psychological and health benefits over other relationships; and children are particularly blessed by growing up in a stable family with a mother and father. The blessings provided by strong marriages also benefit all of society by providing well-adjusted, secure, responsible and productive citizens.

Legislating to redefine marriage to include same-sex relationships is not benign because it will further conceal the true nature and benefits of marriage from the next generation. Many more will be tempted to make poor life choices by not seeking a marriage partner because of this lack of knowledge. And unfortunately many of these poor decisions made early in life are self-reinforcing and lead to further irresponsibility and dependency. Our society will be greatly poorer for this.

This is the essence of why legally changing the definition of marriage will be harmful to Australia. And once the definition of marriage is changed, there will be no stopping further degradation. Already there are groups lobbying for marriage to include relationships with several people at once, with animals or with children. And it is telling that they too use exactly the same specious reasons of 'discrimination', 'equality' and 'tolerance'.

Please therefore use your vote and influence in Parliament to uphold the definition of marriage as between a man and a woman only.

Yours faithfully,
