Our speaker at the November bar luncheon was DR. BARRY BOOTH who reminded everyone of the need to honor and remember the veterans of World War II for their sacrifices and service that preserved our freedoms. I want to give a special thanks to MIKE DRUHAN who has been responsible for arranging the speakers at the bar meetings during the past year. He has done an excellent job arranging for interesting and informative speakers.

Please call Barbara or Tammy at Bar Headquarters and let them know that you plan on coming to the bar Christmas party on Tuesday the 11th of December at COURTYARD MANOR, 751 Dauphin Street. This is the same location at last year and is in the old Gus's Restaurant building a block or so east of Broad Street. The cost is $35 for an individual or $60 a couple, which includes three drink tickets per person. In addition, each person or couple attending is asked to bring an unwrapped gift suitable for a child to the party. The gifts will be delivered by the committee to charities for distribution to needy children and families.

The committee has planned good food and has arranged for the SUBURBAN JAZZ QUARTET to entertain us. The party starts at 6:00 p.m. and closes at 9:00 p.m. I hope to see you there.

In this season of thanksgivings, I want to thank you for honoring me with the opportunity to serve this past year as President of your association. It has been both interesting and a pleasure. I have been impressed with the energy and courtesy many of you bring to bar projects that result in many of the most important activities of the Mobile Bar being planned, scheduled, and completed by the committees and their member without calling on the officers or the Executive Committee for assistance.

MICHAEL UPCHURCH will be your next President and I am sure that he will find his year as President as interesting and rewarding as I have.

Sometimes I get so caught up with everyday life that birthdays, holidays, etc. almost slip by without notice and this year is no exception. As usual, the end-of-year activities seminars, Bench & Bar Conference, Holiday Party, Holiday Luncheon, committee and section assignments, new officers, the list goes on and on – keep us extremely busy but not busy that we miss wishing each of you a Holiday Blessing. This season is full of wonderful happenings throughout the MBA Community as well as the Mobile Community MBA Activities, Firm parties, Christmas musical programs, ballet, art, etc. I hope that we will all slow down enough to share with others and enjoy what the blessings this season has to offer.

The MBA has had another excellent year under Wes Pipes’ administration. Our thanks to Wes, Michael Upchurch, Mike Druhan, Tish R. Davis, Tom Wood, Meegan Nelson and the entire executive committee for their support throughout 2012. Running your Bar, with approximately 1300 members, is not an easy task and the Committee is faced with many challenges throughout the year. Their leadership is vital to the well-being of this Association.

We thank the Young Lawyers for their support and leadership this year, Glenn Smith and his Board are to be commended for their hard work, community involvement and many donations to worthy causes. Also, the change at the South Alabama Volunteer Lawyer Program has been practically painless. We, of course, miss Blakely but Shannon has stepped right in and hardly missed a beat. She and the staff have seen some big changes this year and we commend them.

Please review this publication for all of the December happenings within the MBA and, once again,

*May your Holiday Season be filled with Joy and Happiness and your New Year with Peace and Prosperity.
Barbara, Tammy and Wynette*

SIGNIFICANT DECISIONS

BY DUANE GRAHAM

In a case of first impression, the Supreme Court in Malfatti v. Bank of America, N.A., No. 1101112 (Ala., June 29, 2012), held that a default judgment entered as sanctions for failure to comply with discovery could not be asserted as collateral estoppel or issue preclusion in a subsequent proceeding because the issues had not been actually litigated. The Court rejected the notion that the “actually litigated” requirement could be deemed satisfied based on the notion that the defaulting party had the opportunity to litigate the matter and intentionally chose not to.

In a complicated, but potentially very important, case involving the construction industry, the Supreme Court rigorously applied the illegality rules associated with an unlicensed contractor in order to preclude the other party to a contract with the unlicensed contractor from recovering on that party otherwise valid contract with an Alabama contractor. In White-Spunner Construction, Inc. v. Construction Completion Company, LLC, No. 1101285 (Ala., June 22, 2012), the Court first analyzed and concluded that a contract under which an unlicensed Florida contractor provided laborers to a licensed Alabama contractor was illegal under Ala. Code § 34-8-1, et seq., because the Florida company’s action fit within the statutory definition of a general contractor in Alabama as to which none of the statutory exceptions applied and, therefore the Florida company required a license to perform the contract. Because this contract was illegal, and not simply voidable at the option of the Alabama contractor, the Supreme Court then held that the Alabama contractor, which had acted as a subcontractor under a general construction contract, could not recover unpaid sums under its otherwise valid contract with the general contractor because to prove its claim required resort to activities occurring under the illegal contract with the Florida company. As the Court noted, Alabama law prohibits recovery on a claim if, to prove claim, the party has to rely in whole or in part, on an illegal transaction or other criminal or immoral act.

In what may be a procedural case of first impression, the Supreme Court in Ex parte Northstar Battery Company, LLC, No. 1110612 (Ala., June 1, 2012), granted a writ of mandamus ordering a trial court to dismiss an action against an out-of-state business entity for lack of personal jurisdiction. While the defendant had presented evidence addressing the claimed lack of personal jurisdiction in its motion to dismiss, the majority opinion chose instead to grant the motion solely on the ground that there was no allegation in the complaint supporting personal jurisdiction against the defendant and, thus, the burden never shifted to the defendant to present evidence negating personal jurisdiction issue and, thus, due to the absence of such an allegation, the case was due to be dismissed. Justice Murdock, in a concurring opinion, noted that the Rules of Civil Procedure do not require an allegation of facts supporting personal jurisdiction against a defendant, but based on the evidence that had been presented by the defendant he concurred in the result.

Carefully parsing, and to some extent limiting, its recent decision in Regions Bank v. Reed, 60 So.3d 868 (Ala.2010), the Supreme Court in Regions Bank v. Kramer, No. 1100967 (Ala., June 1, 2012), held that the Reed case had only decided that a probate court having statutory equity powers had concurrent jurisdiction with a circuit court over a case against a trustee arising out of the administration of a trust and that language in the opinion seeming to say that only one claim – breach of fiduciary duty – could be asserted against a trustee was only intended to mean that a probate court’s jurisdiction over trust cases could not be thwarted simply by styling claims as a general tort claim such as negligence rather than as a breach of fiduciary duty claim per se. Accordingly, in the Kramer case, which presented a narrow question by way of a permissive appeal, the Court determined that it would not hold as a matter of law that no claim under the Alabama Securities Act could ever be alleged against a trustee. Thus, the Court affirmed the trial court’s order refusing to dismiss that claim. The Court also held that, while claims against trustees involving the administration of a trust were generally equitable in nature and, thus, not subject to a jury demand, it would not resolve the jury trial issue on this appeal with respect to a possible securities act claim against a trustee.

YOUNG LAWYERS

E. GLENN SMITH, JR., PRESIDENT

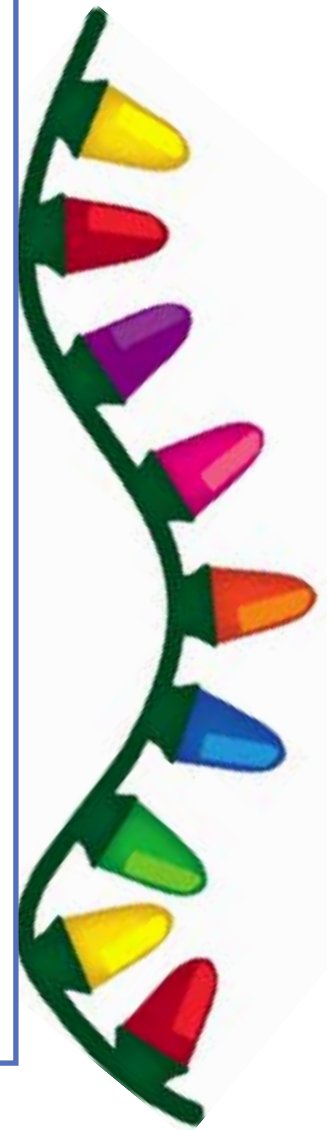

I have thoroughly enjoyed the honor and privilege of serving this year as the President of the Mobile Young Lawyers Section of the Mobile Bar Association. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve on the Executive Committee of the Mobile Bar Association as well as on the Board of Directors for the Mobile Bar Foundation. We have exceptional leadership with both organizations, so if you see WES PIPES or KATHY MILLER, be sure to thank them for the work they have done to make our Mobile Bar Association and Mobile Bar Foundation the best in the State. I would be remiss to fail to acknowledge BARBARA RHODES and TAMMY ANDERSON for the hard work they put in behind the scenes to keep the bar running smoothly, and FERRELL ANDERS for his work in bringing you this bulletin – so thank you all.

THE YOUNG LAWYERS had a phenomenal year in terms of fundraising and overall atmosphere at the monthly meetings, neither of which would have been possible without the generosity of our sponsors and the hard work of the officers and Executive Committee. In all, we were able to give a combined $12,900 in donations to the ST. MARY’S HOME, THE MOBILE BAR FOUNDATION, CAMP RAP-A-HOPE, and THE SOUTH ALABAMA VOLUNTEER LAWYERS PROGRAM this year. We certainly could not have done this without your generous support and the Committee’s hard work, so I thank you again.

I am pleased to announce the incoming officers for next year, who will begin serving in January. The incoming President is JOSH FRIEDMAN who works at BARRY A. FRIEDMAN & ASSOCIATES (josh@bafmobile.com). Josh has served as both Treasurer and Vice President in the past two years and I am confident that he will do a great job this next year as President. Our incoming Vice President is KASEE HEISTERHAGEN who works at BURR & FORMAN (ksparks@burr.com). Kasee has done an outstanding job serving as Treasurer this year and should do well in her role as Vice President. Our incoming Treasurer is JONATHAN MAPLES who works at CARR ALLISON (jmaples@carrallison.com). While Jonathan has big shoes to fill, he too should do well keeping this organization headed down the right path. If you are interested in sponsoring a meeting next year, it is never too early to reserve a month, just contact Josh, Kasee, or Jonathan for details.

Thank you again for making this an outstanding year for the Young Lawyers, and I wish all of you a very happy holiday season.
