

Parent Information Night: The Redesigned SAT

The Fulton County School System's School Counseling Department is presenting:

Parent Information Night: the Redesigned SAT. Each session will cover the following:

The College Board will share with parents the redesigned SAT that will begin in March 2016, including the new system for scoring the SAT, the contents of the test, including the different test sections and specific types of questions students will be answering.

In addition, the College Board will share student preparation opportunities that are free of charge offered through the College Board's website.

There will also be a brief question and answer session at the conclusion of the event.

Four parent information nights are scheduled – one per learning community. Parents can attend the session of their choice. There is no registration for either session but the approximate capacity per session is 250 people.

Parents of students in grades 6-12 are invited (middle school parents are invited to attend as well as high school parents).
