Julie Roys

Moody Radio Host | Up For Debate

Julie Roys is a speaker, writer and host of Up for Debate, a nationally-syndicated talk show on the Moody Radio Network. A graduate of both Wheaton College and the prestigious Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern University, Julie is respected for her ability to tackle difficult conversations with both courage and fairness. A wife, mother of three and daughter of God, Julie's rare mix of faith, family and investigative journalism make her a unique Christian voice.

Mauck & Baker

established in Chicago in 2001, is nationally known for representing churches, religious institutions, businesses, and individuals.

The law firm has been on the forefront for supporting religious freedom for churches and its work in passing the Federal Religious Land Use and Institutionalized Persons Act of 2000 (RLUIPA). RLUIPA provides protection for churches and religious institutions by prohibiting restrictive zoning laws and declaring that having physical space to function is critical to practicing one's faith. Mauck & Baker is an Alliance Defending Freedom allied law firm and an active member of the Christian Legal Society.
