February Classes

TWITTER– February 1, 10:00 to Noon

Twitter was originally called “a social network”, but it is more than that – it is actually an information network on which people internationally share thoughts and opinions about what is happening all over the world.

MORE PHOTOSHOP – February 8, 1:00-3:00 pm.

Second in our series of Photoshop presentations, this session will focus on creating flyers. Review of last month's 1st class, questions and answers about what you're doing, and personal help will also be available.

WIKIPEDIA – February 22, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

Wikipedia is an online encyclopedia that could very well be one of the most interesting web sites online. You can literally find information about ANY subject in which you are interested – including references to other sources. AND it is easy to use.

THE HISTORY PROJECT – February 29, 1:00 – 3:00 pm

Continue work from the last session in January or start fresh and create your own family history online. Individual assistance available.

See reverse side for other sites where CLC is teaching special “On The Road” classes and hosting weekly open computer labs
