

Dear Colleague:

The Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine seeks a dynamic, innovative leader to build on our strong foundation and achievements in the Department of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences as its new Director [chair].

The new Director will be an accomplished and respected scientist with evidence of leadership qualities, strong interpersonal and communication skills, and significant accomplishments in clinical service, teaching, research, and administration. We are seeking individuals with a high level of energy, a track record of working effectively with faculty and leadership from diverse scientific and clinical disciplines, and the desire and ability to have a major impact on the future of medicine through leadership of a premier Department of Psychiatry. The successful candidate must share our unwavering commitment to excellence, integrity, collegiality, and respect for and inclusion of individuals of diverse backgrounds.

We would appreciate your potential interest or suggestions of potential candidates. We have a particular interest in identifying minority and women candidates as we continue the School of Medicine's efforts to increase the diversity of our leadership. Nominations, with complete postal and e-mail addresses, if possible, should be addressed to:
