The Cancer Institute of New Jersey (now known as Rutgers CINJ) initially funded by the National Cancer Institute in 1997 and designated comprehensive in 2002, is one of 45 NCI-designated Comprehensive Cancer Centers in the United States and the only NCI-designated cancer center in the state of New Jersey. RCINJ is a nationally-recognized leader in research and patient care; developing the latest treatments and clinical trials; conducting countless screenings that have resulted in life-saving discoveries for many citizens of New Jersey; recruiting the country's leading cancer researchers and clinicians into New Jersey; becoming a consortium center with Princeton University; and serving as a magnet for pharmaceutical and biotechnology collaborations. RCINJ is funded at more than $20 million annually (direct costs) by NCI. Current peer review funding to RCINJ members is over $95 million (total costs) with a grand total combined peer reviewed and non-peer reviewed funding of more than $104 million.

The Director will be the principal spokesperson for RCINJ, promoting and strengthening the brand in the community, and increasing national and international recognition of its experience and expertise in translational research. She/he is expected to provide collaborative leadership within Robert Wood Johnson Hospital's oncology service line to ensure multidisciplinary, patient-centered quality care for all major disease sites. The Director will also be responsible for ensuring that the RCINJ is well prepared in its renewal application for NCI designation, expected in 2018.

Candidates for this position will have an M.D. or M.D./Ph.D., with a sustained record of peer reviewed funding by NIH, and have national and/or international recognition for their academic program in oncology.
