

Geisinger Health System invites nominations and interest for the System Chair of Radiology. Geisinger Health System (GHS) is a physician-led, not-for-profit, fully-integrated health care organization and an early adopter of the electronic health record (EHR). Geisinger is seeking a System Chair of Radiology who will play a key leadership role across GHS in all aspects of clinical care, teaching, quality improvement, research and faculty and staff development. The System Chair of Radiology will provide strategy and vision to chart the short and long-term goals of this pivotal department in shaping the future of radiology and health care across GHS.

Reporting to the Chief Medical Officer (CMO), the System Chair of Radiology will lead a team of physicians, nurses, technologists, residents, fellows and administrative staff to develop and implement their vision. The successful candidate will work closely with all stakeholders including the CEO, System CMO, System Chief Research Officer, Geisinger Health Plan, Vice Presidents, Directors, other system department chairs, division leaders and section chiefs.

The System Chair of Radiology will be an experienced physician whose personal and professional conduct achieves this standard of excellence. She/he will be expert in best practices and will demonstrate the critical qualities of leadership necessary to motivate and inspire staff and system leadership to attain new levels of collaborative partnerships across GHS to promote the Geisinger model of success. The successful candidate will be personally approachable in a genuine manner and lead with transparency and authenticity. Superior judgment, creativity, communications and interpersonal skills, and the ability to thrive in a highly complex, extraordinarily intellectual, and deeply matrixed environment will be necessary ingredients to this position's success.
