Oklahoma members turned empty Ralgro wheels into cash

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK, JULY 27, 2015 -- The wheels rolled in and so did the cash. For the past year, Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association (OCA) members have been saving those little green wheels. This past week that one simple activity yielded $4,186.00 for the OCA.

For every empty wheel returned during OCA's annual meeting, Merck Animal Health gave $1 to the organization's special projects fund.

"We appreciate all our members that saved their Ralgro wheels this past year," says Charlie Swanson, OCA President. "The Wheels for Bucks program will allow us to provide scholarships to young beef producers to participate in national educational programs and events in 2015."

The Wheels for Bucks program is a partnership between Merck Animal Health and participating state cattlemen's organizations. Members bring in their empty Ralgro wheels to their annual state meeting to help raise money for their association.

"We're pleased so many Oklahoma producers benefit from a wheel of Ralgro at their farm or ranch. Then, turning that wheel into value for their state cattlemen's group," says Darrel Kane, sales representative for Merck Animal Health. "The Wheels for Bucks program is a small way Merck Animal Health can team up our customers to strengthen the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association."
