If you're writing (or reading) specifications or even managing a project without knowing how the General Conditions or Division 01 documents impact your project, you may be walking into problems!

Join us for this information session on Front End documents (Divisions 00 and 01), led by CSI instructors David Proudfit and Phil Babinec. The session will help participants to:

- Analyze what parts of Division 01 affect the technical specifications and examine the methods and systems in a project that are common to all technical sections of the specification.
- Discover the role of Division 01 General Requirements in the Construction Contract and how they expand on contracts, bidding, contract negotiations, and other factors involving construction contract administration.
- Investigate what articles in the technical specifications relate to the General Conditions and Division 01 through analyzing an individual specification and how that interrelationship affects every portion of the project including codes, regulations drawings, specifications, and delivery methods.
- Recognize how the General Conditions indicate who is responsible for what, how, and when by reviewing documents critical to construction contract administration and how these documents affect each technical section of the specification.
