SAVING ENDANGERED WILDLIFE:

Celebrating 25 Years of Protecting NH's Rare Species

For 25 years the Nongame and Endangered Wildlife Program has worked to restore endangered species and keep common species common in New Hampshire.

Join Fish and Game Wildlife Biologist Emily Preston, to hear how we are helping Blanding's turtles, Black Racers, New England cottontails, bats, and more! She will highlight new research and how we use that to improve habitat and other aspects of species lives.

Let's celebrate our successes and learn how we can protect endangered animals in the future!
