

Be A Master Gardener

We use the word "growing" almost daily to indicate an area where we want to improve an outcome. Whether the desire is to grow petunias, profits, or your personal well-being, remember these 4 essential elements.

Soil

What's the environment surrounding your idea? Is it supportive? Will the environment help your plan take root or restrict its growth?

Sunlight

With so much already going on, what will you do to help this idea see the "light of day?" What needs to change in your work or personal activities?

Water/Nutrients

Any new idea or plan will require resources. It may be time, information, money, or training. Are you prepared to secure those resources to help grow your idea?

Temperature

There's a reason you haven't acted on your ideas in the past. Most likely it's due to a lack of urgency (i.e. rise in temperature). What's your sense of urgency now?

Jones Loflin

Moving Your Work and Life Forward

www.jonesloflin.com