The Quality of Life

According to Dr. Joe Coughlin, founder and director of MIT AgeLab, while we may fear our lifespan outliving our wealthspan, there's an even greater risk of:

- Outliving our physical capacity to remain comfortably independent
- Losing easy access to the big and small things that make us happy, and
- Seeing a decline in the number of friends critical to supporting quality living in old age.

Planning for these contingencies is an integral part of preparing to live longer, better. Bill McManus will detail why you should integrate these issues into a comprehensive planning discussion that makes an ambiguous retirement future more tangible to your clients. Help your clients commit to preparing for their retirement today!
