

Joetta Howard-Hagwood is a Certified Rehabilitation Counselor and works as a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor with the Georgia Vocational Rehabilitation Agency. Joetta graduated Magna Cum Laude with her B.A. from Hampton University in Hampton, VA, and has an M.S. in Rehabilitation Counseling from Fort Valley State University (Fort Valley, GA). Joetta has traveled the world due to being an “ARMY brat” and has encountered people from different cultures and backgrounds, which helped her in her career as a vocational rehabilitation counselor for individuals with disabilities. Joetta grew-up the majority of her life in El Paso, TX, before heading to college in Hampton, VA. After graduation from Hampton University, Joetta worked as a medical technician assisting veterans with their medical needs at the Veteran Affairs Hospital in Augusta, GA. After graduating from Fort Valley State University, Joetta worked as a Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor with the State of Virginia, State of Colorado, and is currently working for the second time with the State of Georgia. Joetta also has worked at Grady Hospital’s Department of Behavioral Health as a community-based counselor, assisting individuals with mental health and substance-abuse diagnoses with counseling and guidance in their homes, jails, and shelters. Joetta spends her spare time studying, as she is currently working on her Ph.D., and spends time enjoying life with her husband, daughter, and Maltese (Jaxson).
