On the 150th anniversary of our sixteenth president's second inaugural address, explore how the powerful words of Abraham Lincoln and the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., still speak to the polarizing divisions of our nation—and call for a unified American vision. MSNBC's Chris Matthews moderates this free panel discussion focusing on Lincoln's address and King's "I've Been to the Mountaintop" speech. Presented by Ford's Theatre and Washington National Cathedral.
