Issaka Moussa

Issaka Moussa serves as secretary for global partnerships of the Evangelical Church in Niger (EERN), the oldest and the largest denomination in Niger. By profession, he is a magistrate (currently honorable justice in his country). As a lawyer, he holds a master's degree in "citizenship, human rights and humanitarian action" obtained at the public university of Dakar (Senegal). Before being elected by Niger civil society to hold his current position, he held the position of the high officer in charge of writing the Niger country reports on human rights implementation due to the treaty bodies – the United Nations and the African Commission on Human and People's Rights. In the church, he held the position of national leader of the youth for ten years and elder in his local church of Boukoki II Niamey for many years. He is the chairperson of the "Prison Fellowship Internal" branch of Niger since 2008. He has a wife and three children – a son of 12 years and two girls of 10 and 8 years old.

Dates for the 2016 Peacemakers

Peacemakers will be available for visits this year from September 23 to October 17. Before and after their iteration they will gather in Louisville at the Presbyterian Mission Agency for orientation and debriefing.

Visits from International Peacemakers to hosting mid-councils and institutions generally last 3-5 days, excluding travel days. Not all visits must or may include a weekend. Midweek visits can be ideal for colleges, universities or theological institutions.

Mid-Councils (Presbyteries and Synods) as well as educational institutions can apply to host a peacemaker. After July 1, a few peacemakers may still have availability, but it will be limited.
