This Barth took our family on 7500 mile road trip 2 summer's ago and is turn-key ready to do it all over again. This deluxe rig cost over $100,000 in 1990. Barth was a top end road coach builder and made their "All-Aluminum" high end rigs in Milford, Indiana. Barths are uniquely constructed using jet aircraft construction techniques with lightweight and durable All-aluminum frame and sheet-work. Riveted together with 2120 Rivets and mounted on Heavy Welded Steel Chassis. The construction technique "Makes Barth ride smoother, quieter and more precise than any other coach". This Barth is nearly as easy to drive as a Chevy Suburban with great visibility and road handling skills. Barth's are rare and this rig is in good shape and makes everyone look twice and want a tour.
