

ROD SCOTT

B.A. COMMUNICATION '13

Rod Scott exemplifies persistence and resilience.

The first in his family to earn a bachelor's degree, Scott began attending college 16 years after high school. He took classes at several Los Angeles community colleges to receive his associate's degree and then moved his family to Colorado to complete his undergraduate education.

However, things didn't work out as planned, and he and his wife endured the loss of their youngest daughter. They moved back to California and no longer had the means to support his academic goal.

But CI did.

Thanks to loans and scholarships through the University, an elated Scott continued his journey and graduated in 2013.

Currently, Scott is a B2B sales consultant for international eyewear designer and marketer REM Eyewear in Sun Valley. A 13-year veteran of the organization, he received the company's prestigious President's Award in 2012.
