»» About 27% of men do not have a 6-½-inch long penis ««

The penis-size issue

Clinically, Medicine only consider penis size a problem nowadays when a penis is 2.34 inches long (aka "micropenis.") Truth be told, there are many men who are under the 6.12 inches mark and, even though medicine doesn't acknowledge their cases as problematic, their penis size makes things really difficult.

Low self-esteem, the indifference of the opposite sex, and problems that impact the relationship are only some side effects of the penis size issue; be it a real or imagined, the problem doesn't go away by itself.
