Cianne Fragione and Seth Adelsberger

April 9 - May 29, 2016

Reception: Saturday, April 9, 1 - 3 pm

Cianne Fragione and Seth Adelsberger push the limits of their respective media to reveal the immediacy and spontaneity involved in the creative process.

"[Adelsberger's] work is very strong visually and aesthetically... [but] also very interesting conceptually and historically. They relate back to artworks done in the late 1950s and 1960s by Jackson Pollock, Willem de Kooning and Frank Stella, and that gives what Seth is doing a lot of heft."

---Kristen Hileman, Curator of Contemporary Art, Baltimore Museum of Art

Reception: Friday, June 10, 7 - 9 pm

Kevin Rohde

June 10 - July 31, 2016

In this body of work composed of ceramic figurative sculptures, Kevin Rohde examines our relationship with clothing, and its use as a symbol to question ideas of consumerism, classicism, and societal development.

RESIDENT ARTIST GALLERY

Irene Sylvester

April 3 - 24, 2016

Reception: Sunday, April 9, 1 - 3 pm

Irene Sylvester continues her exploration of the planets with multimedia abstractions of Deep Space.

LESS IS MORE

Artist: Judith Kornett

April 30 - May 22, 2016

Reception: Sunday, May 15, 2 - 4 pm

The title of this exhibition, LESS IS MORE, is reflective of Judith Kornett's intention to create sculptures that are fewer in number but deeper in content. Thematically the pieces in this show express the belief that less violence will create a more peaceful world. Kornett has invited others to create small works of art to be included in an installation that will be the exhibition's titular piece. Proceeds from the sale of this installation, or parts thereof will be donated directly to organizations or services that offer aid to victims of violence.

Melissa Burley

May 29 - June 26, 2016

Reception: Friday, June 10, 7 - 9 pm

Melissa Burley creates sculptural assemblages that elevate both man-made and recycled materials to a level that suggests there is beauty in life after death. She hopes to open the eyes of others to consider his or her role in the preservation of our earth.
