Our first priority is addressing your immediate crisis, then we will help you get on the road to recovery. As part of a statewide crisis system for all Coloradans, North Range Behavioral Health provides crisis services and partners with community resources to get you the help you need.

Whether you walk into our crisis clinic, receive help from a mobile crisis responder, or need additional treatment, we are here to help. Our compassionate, professional staff and other community agencies will help ensure you get the care you need. If appropriate, we will then refer you to our comprehensive mental health and addiction treatment services.
