850,000 people live in the UK with Dementia

Dementia affects how the brain works and there can be a wide range of symptoms including disorientation, confusion and wandering. Creating a supportive, person centred environment can promote independence and significantly improve the quality of life for people with dementia, especially in the early stages.

For this reason the use of purpose designed, high visibility dementia signage has an important role to play in helping people with orientation difficulties to find their way more easily and safely.

At Display Signs we believe that our wayfinding and door signage can help stop the confusion as they are clear and easy to see.

Our signs have a bright yellow background with plain black text which creates the best visible contrast for the human eye. Instead of cartoons we use real images of objects associated with a room or activity. This helps to evoke memories and reduces confusion.

All our signs are made of durable, easy to wipe clean materials making them more hygienic and longlasting than paper or cardboard. All signs have a matt, anti glare finish which makes them readable in all lighting conditions.

Our range of Dementia signage is fully customisable. Please speak to us about extending design options to suit your needs.
