Coffee with a Cop

Imagine you're in a coffee shop enjoying a cuppa jo and in walks a Bloomfield police officer. "Hmmm. . . should I ask about that . . .?"

Imagine no more because now you can do just that. "Coffee with a Cop" is a new program developed by Bloomfield's Community Policing Unit. Residents can call for a private meeting (no group discussions) with local officers to discuss issues ranging from the unsightly house next door, to suspicious neighborhood activity or questions about police operations. No need to worry about airing your concerns in front of others.

You'll likely meet with Sgt. Naomi Zepeda and/or Officer Hector Nunez, both from Community Policing.

Some residents have already held informal, friendly meetings in places like the Nevada Diner and ZiZia Pizzeria. To set up your own Coffee with a Cop session, call Nunez at (973) 259-3153 or e-mail him at hnunez@bloomfieldnjpd.com.
